

OUTREACH PROJECT

The Scots Fiddle Festival is looking for talented young fiddlers/violinists aged 12-18 to be part of the Scots Fiddle Festival Outreach Project and perform at the Scots Fiddle Festival in the Queen's Hall, Edinburgh on Saturday 18th November.

This concert will be a highlight of the festival and the Outreach Project will be supporting American fiddler, violinist, and composer Jeremy Kittel and Patsy Reid who made her own Scots Fiddle Festival debut as a soloist sixteen years ago.

Participants will work with professional musicians to build repertoire, meet other young musicians, develop skills and gain confidence in arranging, learning by ear, working as a group, talking to audiences and learning to use microphones. the experience of recording at a top Edinburgh recording studio and performing at one of Scotland's biggest traditional music festivals.

All workshops and performances will take place in Edinburgh. Participants may come from any part of Scotland as long as they can attend the workshop and performance dates. Accommodation can be provided for those travelling from long distances. There is no cost for participants to be involved in this project.
